INDUSTRY LEADERS

What is the one trait which you think has led to your career success?

Adaptability. Technology is ever improving. Market conditions are ever changing. The clients and candidates I meet every day are also different. Human resource is a job that is never monotonous. So being able to adapt to all these changes and challenges daily indeed requires skill, an open mind and sound judgement.

What do you like most about your job?

Meeting people from various backgrounds, at all levels, from all cultures. The ability to connect, understand the clients' needs and then identifying the candidates abilities and marrying these together, is really fulfilling.

Best career advice you've ever received?

Give yourself a chance. Believe in yourself. You never know the outcome until you have tried it. If it works out well, go for it. If it fails, never mind. Drop it and try something else. A man is not finished when he is defeated. He is finished when he quits. - Richard Nixon

How can employees make a lasting impression on you at work?

Employees who are dedicated and responsible. Those with the "Can-Do" attitude will definitely add value and contribute to the growth of the organization. Someone who is reliable, able to deliver results and can be trusted to get things done. An employee who expects to be spoon fed is a turn-off.

What do you look for in young leaders?

Leaders must be people with the right attitude and integrity. Someone who is also proactive and self-motivated to go and accomplish things and to do things. They must have the drive, big dreams and able to command respect from their followers.

How do you draw the best out of people?

Identify their strengths and weaknesses, then give them the opportunities. Let them have the empowerment to make decisions. Develop them further when they show keen interest to learn and excel.

What is the biggest business challenge you see in your industry now?

Hiring in many industries have slowed down considerably this year due to the global economic conditions. So it is really being able to ride through this economic crisis. And as all SMEs face, it is the challenge to attract and retain good people.
